

Side hustle to main hustle: The basics of starting a business

Listen to this episode and more at “Millennial Money” or subscribe at Apple Podcasts, Spotify, Google Podcasts or wherever you listen to your favourite podcasts. If you would like to support the journalism of the Toronto Star, you can subscribe at thestar.com/subscribingmatters.

By Ghada Alsharif Business Reporter

Wednesday, January 3, 2024

1 min to read

In the last couple of years, Lee’s side hustle has taken off and she thinks she has a real chance of making it her full time gig. McKenna Deighton

Listen to this episode and more at “Millennial Money” or subscribe at Apple Podcasts, Spotify, Google Podcasts or wherever you listen to your favourite podcasts. If you would like to support the journalism of the Toronto Star, you can subscribe at thestar.com/subscribingmatters.

In the last couple of years, Lee’s side hustle has taken off and she thinks she has a real chance of making it her full time gig. Opportunities are starting to appear and that’s exciting but how does she properly capitalize to help make her business grow? Should she get an HST number or become incorporated? What are the pros and cons of both? How do you grow a business when you have passion and some viability but don’t have much business experience?

Janet Gray from Money Coaches Canada shares financial steps to consider when launching a business (even, and especially, if you don't really know how to do that).

This episode was produced by Ghada Alsharif, Julia De Laurentiis Johnston, Sean Pattendon, Kevin Sexton and Andrea Varsany

What you would like to hear on Toronto Star podcasts? Let us know in this survey and you can enter to win a $100 gift card.